TO JOIN WITH MEN OF HARD COAL FIELDS

Three-Fourths Of Union Workers Of District 21, Oklahoma, Arkansas And Part Of Texas, Expected To Walk Out At Midnight Monday.

HARTSHORNE, Okla., Aug. 31.—(By the Associated Press.)—Three-fourths of the union miners of District 21, comprising Oklahoma, Arkansas and a portion of Texas are expected by union officials to go on strike at midnight.

William Dalrymple, district president, issued a strike call at a mass meeting of miners here yesterday, urging all union men working in mines of companies that "have repudiated their contracts" and others working at wages less than the 1924-25 scale to cease work tonight.

Dalrymple's order expressed confidence that the union would be able to win its strike and restore the 1924-25 scale. The assembly yesterday was conducted in a good humored manner.

A barbecue was served to a crowd estimated at 10,000 by union officials and entertainmnet features were given in conjunction with the meeting

Speakers made humorous thrusts at a recent conference by Gov. M. E Trapp, from which the union leaders bolted after failure to come to terms with the executive They also made frequent sallies at the occupation of Henryetta district by state troops, but the gathering was free from bitter speeches.

Union miners, who have gone back to work under the 1917 scale, fraternized for the first time with their comrades who have held out for the more recent scale.

Anthracite Men Ready.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 31—(By the Associated Press)—Anthracite mining in northeastern Pennsylvania will stop at midnight by order of the United Mine Workers' officials

The stroke of 12 marks expiration of the two year working contract of 158,000 workers, who have been unable to agree with the mine owners upon its renewal, and who decline to work until some renewal is negotiated.

The walkout will place a virtual padlock upon 828 mines in ten counties. It will involve in addition to the bulk of the miners another army of their dependents The full number of those dependent upon the mines, and for whom bread winning accordingly stops, is put at 500,000

About 8,000 maintenance men will remain in the pits by mutual agreement to prevent flooding and attend to their general upkeep. They will be assessed a day's pay ever two weeks for the union's emergency fund

Rail Men Made Idle.

Something like 10,000 railroad men, employed in handling of coal shipments and shops and car repair work, will probably be thrown out of work.

The suspension will be practically 100 per cent effective. The region has been thoroughly organized by the union and the handful of men the union has permitted its members to associate with, despite the lack of union buttons, is expected to quit as well

Union officials contemplate no picketing, and the owners, so far as can be learned, plan no importing of non-union help.

At many mines, contract miners quit work Saturday after blowing down enough coal to keep their

WILBER, Neb., Aug 31.—At a meeting of the Saline county commissioners a proposition to vote on the building of a new county court house here was turned down The present building has been in use for the past 45 years and is considered too small and obsolete

There is a fund of $100,000 on hand which was raised by special levy in the past, and which was to be used for the purpose of erecting a new building eventually. It is contended that a modern building will cost over twice this amount.

The proposition was presented in a petition signed by several citizens

Carrier Not To Keep Up Bridge

Holding that the Union Pacific railroad is not required to maintain, repair or replace a bridge over a dry water course near Eddyville, inside the railroad right of way but not crossing its tracks, the state railway commission has dismissed the complaint of the Dawson county board against the carrier.

Commissioner Taylor, who wrote the order, quotes two decisions of the Nebraska Supreme court holding that a railroad company could not be compelled to keep highway bridges in order, on its right of way, where the bridges would be needed even if there were no railroad trackage

The bridge now there, which is deemed defective and dangerous for travel, was originally built by the Union Pacific; but it notified the county board a number of years ago that it would not be liable for maintenance of the structure.

FIND NEW LEAD IN MURDER CASE

Officers Seeking Two Strangers Seen In Hastings Day of Crime.

(Special to The Star)

HASTINGS, Neb, Aug. 31—The only new clue developed in the Yager-Bird murder case is causing officers to endeavor to trace two young men who visited two filling stations here a week ago Sunday, the day of the murder.

These men, who stated that they were on their way to Denver, attempted at both station to pawn a brown suit of clothing for ten dollars worth of gasoline In this they were unsuccessful, but they called a second time at one of the stations, and when the man in charge declined to make the exchange one of them declared that they would get the ten dollars before they left town The men walked to the filling stations and their car was not seen

It was thought that the two men arrested in Sioux City and later taken to Lincoln by Sheriff Conditt might be the men who endeavored to put this deal across, but the gasoline station attendant with whom they had attempted to do business here went to Lincoln yesterday and after looking them over declared they were not the ones.

Local officers have received word from the police department at Los Angeles to the effect that officials in the coast city have questioned Lawrence Bird, who walked into the sheriff's office there and that they are convinced that he was not in Nebraska at the time of the murder.

Bird Surrenders.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 31.—(A. P.)—Lawrence Bird, 30, Santa Barbara plasterer, strolled into the sheriff's office here, said he was wanted in Hastings, Neb., for the slaying of his divorced wife and a man companion and asked that he be housed in the county jail until authorities checked his allbi. ## SAYS LANE HAD AID IN ESCAPE

Alleged Store Burglar Makes Successful Break Sunday Night.

No Clues to Prisoner Who Had Been Under Mental Observation.

That James R Lane was aided in his escape Sunday night from the Bailey Sanitorium by one and possibly two persons was a theory advanced Monday by Captain of Detectives Walter Anderson. The detective captain said he had learned that a Ford coupe which a woman was driving had been parked in front of the hospital for more than an hour after dusk, and that another coupe containing a man and a woman had been seen driving back and forth on a road south of the hospital

Although police and the sheriff's office were notified soon after Lane's escape became known, they had not been able to find any trace of him

Lane was taken to the sanitorium recently for observation after acting queerly for several weeks while he was a prisoner in both the city and county jails. He was arrested July 13 in connection with the burglary of Magee's store.

According to Captain Anderson, other circumstances in connection with Lane's dash for freedom, such as the fact that several autos drove past the sanitorium at a leisurely pace early Sunday night led him to the conclusion that Lane was abetted in his flight by accomplices.

It also became known Monday that Lane had removed the screws from the screen of the window of his room several days ago He substituted bits of rolled green paper for the screws. The alleged burglar also is alleged to have obtained several bolts in some manner and made a screw driver from them. This improvised implement was used by him in his preliminary plans for escape

Captain of Detectives Walter Anderson said Monday that he had expected Lane would attempt a break for freedom for some time The former said he had not taken much stock in reports that Lane was mentally irresponsible.

Lane first came into the limelight when following his arrest he refused to eat or talk.

He was committed to the sanatorium when a physician declared he was unable to stand the ordeal of a trial.

A Ford coupe, which was in Lane's possession when he was taken into custody, is being held by police

A woman, who told police she was Mrs Lane, and, who, until a short time ago lived at the Windsor hotel, is being sought by police for questioning.

At the time Lane was arrested, she was said to be living with him at the state hospital where both were employed

About People

Charles Boles, manager of the local government employment bureau, expects to leave on his vacation September 12. He may attend the thirteenth annual convention of the employment service at Rochester, N. Y., September 15 to 17.

Miss Anna Bryner and Miss Ruth Tucker of Duncan, Okla., have been visiting for a week at the home of Miss Bryner's aunt, Mrs. R. C. Boles, 2922 Dudley street. They will leave Tuesday to return to their homes.

Robert P. Pirie, who is a senior this year at Annapolis naval academy, has arrived in Lincoln for a visit of twelve days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Pirie, 1631 F street.

Miss Elizabeth Wilson and Mrs. J. W. Mowery, both of Ottumwa, Ia., are here for a week or two as guests at the home of their brother, Dr. W. H. Wilson, chief of the state health bureau.

Chief T. W. Bass of the state gasoline tax bureau was called to Broken Bow on Sunday by the news of his brother's death there. He expected to return Monday night to Lincoln, after the funeral services.

Mrs. Charles W. Meeker of Imperial, with her granddaughter, Miss Faunell Senter of Wayne, is visiting her son, David Meeker, private secretary to Governor McMullen, for a few days. Miss Senter, who was in the 1925 graduating class at the University of Nebraska, will be employed as a teacher in the city schools at West Point.

LUCK DESERTS RUNAWAY HERE

North Carolina Boy Starts Homeward In Custody of Brother.

Byrum Childers, 16-year-old North Carolina boy, is on his way back home in the custody of his older brother, J. S. Childers, much wiser so far as the geography of the United States is concerned, but repentant.

Byrum borrowed his brother's car several weeks ago, "to take his girl out riding." Byrum and the car disappeared. No trace of him was found until last Thursday when Deputy Sheriff Milton Gates arrested him in University Place as a "suspicious character."

Until that fatal moment luck had trailed along with Byrum. He had enough money to "get along." He had enjoyed his sight-seeing trips through a dozen different states and numerous large cities. But funds were running low by the time he reached Lincoln.

Then luck deserted him. Several oil station robberies occurred in the vicinity of University Place about the time Byrum arrived. Byrum's youthful appearance and the foreign license number on his car impressed Sheriff Gates as being a bit unusual for a pleasure seeking tourist. He arrested the boy.

In explaining his lack of funds the boy told a thrilling story of having been robbed. Next he declared his brother permitted him to have the car to make a trip to the Minnesota lakes. But when Gates sent a telegram to the boy's parents the latter told the true story. He was then held by Sheriff Gates until the elder Childers arrived in Lincoln Sunday to take the car and Byrum back home. Before leaving Byrum admitted that his pleasures had not repaid him for his experience with the law.

Two Candidates For Marsh's Place As State Auditor

Two members of the state auditor's office force are likely to be candidates for Auditor Marsh's place in the republican primary next year. Announcement was made Monday by Howard Crandall, examiner of county treasurers for that department, that he expects to file for auditor. Frank B. Honza is also laying wires in the hope of succeeding his chief.

Honza's home is at Omaha and he would have the advantage of a large personal acquaintance in Douglas county, assuring him a big vote there. On the other hand, Crandall's work as county treasury examiner during the past four years has given him an extensive acquaintance out over the state. He is an ex-service man of the World war, affiliated with the American Legion, and is a graduate of the University of Nebraska.

C. D. Robinson, present state treasurer, got his political start from serving as county treasurer in Webster county and later as a state examiner of county treasuries.

It has already been given out by Auditor Marsh that he is not a candidate for re-election to his present office, in which he is now serving his fourth term. His friends think he will run for congress in the first district.

SAYS CERTAIN AS TO IDENTITY OF TWO KILLERS

Condit Believes New Mexico Men Responsible for Slaying of Officers.

Murder of Mrs. Bird and Clarence Yager Still Remains Mystery.

Although little definite progress has been made toward the solution of the mystery surrounding the killing of Clarence Yager and Mrs. Hazel Bird at Hastings, the two men who shot and killed Police Officer Ed Clark of North Platte and Sheriff Pratt of Colby, Kas., are believed to have been definitely identified, State Sheriff Condit said Sunday upon his return from Hastings where he has been for the last five days.

Clues which have been picked up and the trail which has led the officers south through Kansas and Oklahoma into New Mexico have convinced the officers that the murderers of the two officers are two men of Tucumcari, N. M. Both are said to be dangerous characters.

Deputy Sheriff Frank Weygint went on to North Platte to aid the Nebraska and Kansas officers in the chase which followed the slaying of the two officers. State Sheriff Condit remained at Hastings to assist in the investigation of the Yager-Bird mystery. Both returned to Lincoln Sunday.

Tells of Clues.

The following lines of clues which led the officers to what they believe is the absolute identification of the killers of Sheriff Pratt and Officer Clark was related by Sheriff Weygint.

The two men were driving a Buick at the time Sheriff Pratt was killed. This was abandoned when it was wrecked in an effort to get past the blockade the sheriff had placed across the road. A check up on this car proved that it had been stolen in Elkhart, Tex. August 13. After this car had been abandoned the two men went to a farm house nearby and forced Doyle Crawford to turn his Ford touring car over to them, in which they made their getaway. Here a suit case was left behind and in it was found some tools for burglary work and a shirt bearing the initials of one of the men.

It was found that checks were passed at a number of oil stations by the two men in their flight. These checks bore the names of A. T. Arthur and A. T. Atwood. The trail led straight back to that part of New Mexico from which they had originally come. Kansas and New Mexico officers are now searching for the two men in that locality. It is also believed that they may have headed on south into Texas and authorities there have been notified.

Pair Brought Here.

Pete Borgelt and John Noykes, who were arrested in Sioux City a few days ago as suspects in the murder of the two officers, were brought to Lincoln Sunday in an effort to connect them up with the Hastings case. These two men had stolen a car at Concordia, Kas. Several Hastings men, who believed they had seen two men in Hastings who might have committed the murder there came to Lincoln to attempt to identify Borgelt and Noykes. They failed however.

Both denied having stolen the car from Grand Island, owned by Dr. Flippin, which was later found in Kansas with blood marks on it. Noykes said he had been in Grand Island the preceding week but had left there by train and had gone to Concordia.

The two men were taken to Concordia Sunday night by Constable Carl Moore where auto theft charges will be filed against them.

2 CRASH VICTIMS CRITICALLY HURT

LITTLE HOPE FOR GIRL.

TRINIDAD, Colo., Aug. 31.—4 (By the Associated Press.)—Miss Mary White of Victoria, Tex., whose neck was broken in a wreck of the Texas fast mail train of the Colorado & Southern system at Mayne, Colo., Sunday, today was hanging to life by a slender thread.

Attendants at the railroad's hospital near here, where the best medical talent of the railroad's staff is battling for her life, hold no hope for her recovery. An operation was performed last night in a desperate effort to save the 18-year-old girl.

Judge Kenneth Foree, 68, Dallas, whose back was wrenched, is reported as much improved today and will probably resume his journey before night.

Altogether twelve of the injured remained in the hospital today. Only Miss White is in a dangerous condition.

TRINIDAD, Colo., Aug. 31.—(By the Associated Press.)— Only two of the approximately thirty persons injured in the collision of two Colorado & Southern passenger trains near Mayne, Colo., early Sunday, were in a critical condition at the Colorado & Southern railroad hospital at Walsenburg, Colo., railroad officials announced last night.

Judge Kenneth Foree of Dallas, Tex., with a wrenched spine, is considered the most seriously hurt. Miss Mary White of Victoria, Tex., with an injured spine, also is in a critical condition.

STANDARD TELLS WHY GAS LOWER

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—By the Associated Press.)—Asserting that there is no industry in this country today so keenly competitive as that in petroleum, the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey in the current issue of its monthly publication, "The Lamp," explains the reason for the recent reductions in gasoline prices."

In 1923 and 1924, when the three new fields in the Los Angeles basin were flooding California with crude oil, it points out that approximately 95,000,000 barrels were shipped through the Panama canal and refined at Atlantic ports. During the same period, the stocks of gasoline in California increased from 3,000,000 barrels to more than 20,000,000 but it was not until recently that receipts of this commodity at Atlantic ports were in sufficient quantity directly to influence the eastern markets.

"The carrying charge on gasoline is heavy if evaporation and loss of interest on money invested in stock be taken into consideration," the publication states. "Evidently California refiners became tired of the burden and decided that this was the time to reduce gasoline stocks, especially since the long expected reduction in output of California crude oil has failed to materialize and because of fear of over-production for months to come. They recognize that even now, at the peak of consumption, they were currently refining from crude oil and producing something over 20,000 barrels daily of gasoline in excess of the requirement on the Pacific coast.

"Since January 1, more than 7,000,000 barrels of California gasoline have been shipped into the eastern market and present receipts are close to 2,000,000 barrels a month.

"Still the large quantity of this gasoline laid down at the Atlantic seaboard during 1925 might not of itself have seriously disturbed the eastern gasoline prices if eastern refiners and especially those in the mid-continent had not equipped themselves for a volume of business based on published statistics—a gain of 28.56 per cent in domestic gasoline consumption for the first quarter of this year over the same period of 1924. However, that was done and the increase in consumption had not been maintained at this rate.

"It now appears that refiners have been running in the neighborhood of 200,000 barrels a day too much crude. East of the Rockies, they are taking it out of field and pipe line storage and either piling it up at their plants in the form of finished products or balancing purchases with sales and not reducing stocks. A decline in the selling price for gasoline naturally resulted and is simply another example of the operation of the law of supply and demand."

It Looks Like a Strike.
A Friend of Evolution.
The North Star.
Restoring Vodka.

By Arthur Brisbane.

Three hundred and twenty-five chiefs controlling 158,000 workers in hard coal mines have received orders to call the men out on a strike. That will cost the workmen $1,000,000 a day. Their leader says, "It cannot be helped."

The men evidently are in for a hard struggle. Much surplus coal has been produced and stored away, and supplies of soft coal and oil are unlimited.

In all such cases the advantage is with the mine owners. Their wives and children won't get hungry. The wives and children of the miners will have hunger fighting against them.

The miners' refusal to submit to arbitration is explained by their leader, Mr. Lewis, thus:

"It cost the miners $60,000,000 last time to find how close the mine owners keep to an arbitrator after he is chosen."

That was a more or less polite way of saying that the mine owners manage to own the arbitrator.

It was denied by the mine owners, of course, but the workers believe it, and the strike is on.

In a black lake, under the mountains near Innsbruck, explorers find a strange sort of toad with long tail, no eyes, and emitting a phosphorescent light.

These frogs will interest friends and enemies of evolutions.

Evolutionists say these frogs changed their appearances through evolution, losing eyes that were useless where there was no light.

Opponents of evolution say, "Not at all. The Creator of the universe, about 6,000 years ago, making all things, had everything in mind, knew everything. He decided to make the long-tailed, pink, blind, phosphorescent Batrachians exactly suited to that black lake under the mountain range."

Two thousand British scientists gathered at Southhampton, to discuss everything under the sun, from the future population of the north and south poles to earthquakes and mosquitoes.

That is as it should be, for Bacon, who taught modern science how to think, said: "I have taken all knowledge for my province," and "nothing that interests the human race can be foreign to me."

Prof. W. A. Parkes of Toronto tells the scientists' convention what has been stated more than once in this column, that our civilization may eventually move to the north and south poles, while "the sites of our present civilization will be buried under glaciers."

It's sad for the owner of a good corner lot in Maine or Miami, Seattle or San Diego, to read that. But it's true.

Divine wisdom causes the earth to turn on its axis, journeying around the sun in such a way as to produce a shifting of the poles. Imagine the earth like a fowl turning on a spit, before a fire, as though it needed to be thoroughly cooked on all sides. That's the correct picture.

What we call the north star was not the north star a few thousand years ago, and will not be the north star 70,000 years hence. In future, when Henry Ford's descendants manufacture 100,000,000 flying machines, instead of 3,000,000 automobiles, a year what we now call our north star will no longer be fixed and unchanging. Our north pole will then point in the direction of the blue star Vega the magnificent star now shining just above your head.

However, insignificant man, little thinking microbe, may change the earth as the microbe in the cheese completely changes its flavor.

Before our swinging pole finishes its next polar circle science may have power to decide what the earth shall do, power to control glaciers, icebergs and to adjust earth's temperatures by diverting heat from the equator to the poles.

One generation ago, many would have said, "What nonsense." But the flying machine, radio and knowledge of atomic construction now exist. Even the dullest minds have lost their fondness for "nonsense" and "impossible."

After the war broke out, the czar put Russia on a cold water basis, stopping the sale of vodka absolutely.

This column then suggested that absence of whisky would mean more cold-thinking by Russians and that one result of such thinking would be the absence of the czar. That prophecy was fulfilled.

Now bolshevism restores vodka to its old alcoholic power, about 40 per cent. The vodka had been sold much weaker and peasants were not satisfied.

When they get back to the old strong drink, they and the bolshevist government both will probably be pleased.

Men to whom thinking is new, dislike the unpleasant sensation and effort.

And governments that want to rule in peace will find their work easier when the crowd ruled is well supplied with whisky.

The potato crop is short, prices higher. This means nothing to the prosperous individual whose only worry about potatoes is his effort to stop eating them because "starch creates fat."

To poor women, paying for potatoes three times what they paid last year, the price means a great deal. It means something, although not so much, to the men that grow potatoes.

It is a small part of the increased cost that the potato grower gets, for that is how our "intelligent distribution" is arranged. Government reports show the total crop off 10 per cent, enough to put up prices more than 100 per cent.

Council Passes Ordinance With Emergency Clause to Protect Children.

Fuel Bids Up Again; Number Paving and Water District Bills Read.

Passage of two ordinances carrying the emergency clause, and the reading of another granting the Missouri Pacific a franchise to construct and operate a spur track from Thirteenth and W streets to the new university auditorium, along with action on bids for the coming year's supply of coal for the water and light department, occupied a major portion of the time of the city council at its session Monday afternoon.

Other new ordinances considered by the council included three providing for the construction of paving, water and sewer districts in the Rathbone Sunset Hill addition; one for paving the west half of Thirty-third street from Holdrege to Hitchcock, and another providing for the building of a sewer on Twenty-seventh street from Sheridan boulevard to Laurel street. The Sunset Hill paving embraces Georgian court from Twenty-ninth street to Thirty-first; Twenty-ninth street; and Woodsdale boulevard from Twenty-seventh to Thirty-first. It is estimated the cost of the work will approach $45,000.

School Traffic Signals.

One emergency clause ordinance permits the city council to authorize by resolution the placing of traffic signals at any intersection or alley by authorities other than city officials. It was drafted particularly to protect children going to and from school and during the recess period. Violations are punishable by a fine of not to exceed $100. The second amends the set back ordinance so that it does not apply to the construction of a new lumber yard by the Pixley Lumber company at Twenty-seventh and E streets.

An ordinance governing parking of automobiles in the residential districts was also read. It carries a provision limiting parking in front of a private driveway to five minutes.

Commissioner Schroeder recommended to the council that the bid of the City Fuel company to furnish the water and light department with 15,000 tons or less of coal during the coming year at $2.35 per ton, be accepted. The recommendation was made on the basis of the bidder agreeing to sign a contract identical with the one just completed. According to Schroeder it carried a provision that gives the city the benefit of any reduction in price that may occur during the life of the agreement. Under this section, Schroeder declares, the city saved $748.53 on the more than fifty carloads used this last year.

For Third Readings.

Ordinances on third reading provided for:

The creation of a water district in Belmont bounded by Ninth, Benton, Lewis avenue, and Nelson streets.

Creation of a paving district on S street between Nineteenth and Twentieth.

Creation of a paving district on Lynn street from Whittier to Twenty-third.

Child Hurt In Auto Accident

Lloyd Wallen, 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Wallen, 2024 Dudley street, received a cut across his lip and a scalp wound about an inch and a half long when an automobile in which he was riding with his mother and another child crashed into a telephone pole at Twenty-second and Vine streets shortly after noon Mnday. He was rushed to the Lincoln hospital where it was said his injuries are not dangerous.

Mrs. Wallen, who was driving on Vine street, turned into the telephone pole, she said, to avoid running into a group of children who were playing at the corner with their kiddie cars or another automobile which came down an incline and turned into Twenty-second street. The windshield was broken by the impact, and glass from this cut the boy. No one else was injured.

THE PRICE OF GAS.

The Standard Oil company of New Jersey comes forward in the current issue of its house organ to explain the reasons for the recent reductions in the price of gasoline.

They can be stated in one work—overproduction.

Now that is news.

For some time now the suspicion has existed among all classes of the American people that the gasoline industry was more closely organized than perhaps any other individual line. The public has become accustomed to the harsh and possibility unfair designation of "gasoline trust" in speaking of the producing companies. Throughout the nation there has been a generally accepted belief that control of the industry has rested in two or three hands—making it easy to control output or production, and to regulate its flow to market.

But the greatest organization in the field says no.

In no business is there greater competion, it asserts, with the result that the market has become demoralized from a large oversupply of gasoline from the producing fields of California and from other sections of the country. The result is cheaper gasoline to gladden the hearts of hundreds of thousands of automobile owners in every section of America. Until these surplus stocks are used, it is to be believed, the public will continue to benefit from the mistake which the producers and the refiners made in flooding the market with a larger quantity of gasoline than it can consume. The Standard Oil company pointed to this situation as an illustration of the natural operation of the law of supply and demand. And so it is in a limited sense, but at this time it might be well to point out there are certain inherent conditions in the gasoline industry and likewise in the manufacturing field which the farmers of Nebraska and of other central western states do not enjoy. The law of supply and demand may operate for a certain period of time to depress the price of the commodity in which they are interested but it requires only a few vigorous measures to correct the situation.

The gasoline industry figured upon a consumption 28.56 percent greater than it has actually been, according to the statement of the Standard Oil company. Roughly an average of 200,000 barrels of gasoline has been produced each day in excess of what was actually required. The estimate was prepared from the figures of 1924, with allowances made for what was expected to be an increased demand. All through the summer the actual consumption of gasoline was lower than had been anticipated.

The gasoline operators at this time now take steps to avert further losses. Production has been slackened in all of the fields. Less gasoline is being produced for market than a month ago while the accumulated surplus stocks are being sold. When these supplies have been used then the price of gasoline will mount, and it will cost the public more to operate its automobiles and its gasoline engines.

The farmer plants his acres and trusts to his seasonal chances. He may have plenty of rainfall and sunshine to mature his crops under ideal conditions, and all of his associates in agriculture may have shared in his good fortune. But he cannot say how much his land shall produce. It may be a full crop or it may be a complete failure. For three, four or five years the favorable seasons may continue and bring forth record yields of all crops. He cannot in the same degree depend upon an even, invariable production. If he knew so many acres would bring forth so much wheat or so much corn, or even could form an approximate estimate of production, he might apply the same process to restricting overproduction and thus preventing the price depression of the things he has to sell. But he cannot be certain of anything and as a result he usually plants all of his land. That is the one element in farming which makes it different than all other industry and business. In agriculture the law of supply and demand comes nearer to operation under natural conditions without any restraining human agencies. If for instance, in the gasoline industry, production was continued under the coditions that govern agriculture, gasoline would continue to be a drug on the market for a very considerable period for enough fields have been developed to produce a great deal more than the United States can possibly use. But the producers have an artificial remedy in their own hands and they are not hesitating to make use of it. The law of supply and demand only operates against the oil companies when they over estimate the amount of gas the American people will need.

WHO PAYS FOR THIS VACATION?

One hundred and fifty thousand men in Pennsylvania are going on vacation. They expect to be absent from their jobs at least three weeks, but it may be three months, or even longer. The possibility exists that the vacation may be a permanent one for many of their number. But, anyway, they have decided to take some time off. They don't expect to lose anything by stopping work, because they think they can make somebody else pay for the lost time.

That is what the anthracite coal miners' strike amounts to, in a few words. The men employed in this industry have had things their own way for so long that they think they can force other laboring people throughout the country to pay them still more tribute and continue supporting them in idleness for a large part of each year. Already overpaid in comparison with most other lines of industrial employment, and grown arrogant because of their previous successes, they have made and are insisting upon new demands more extravagant than ever.

In the past, whenever the coal miners took a vacation the whole country had to pay the bill. They always came back to work on a higher wage scale, after the mine owners had succeeded in scaring consumers with the prospect of a shortage and forced prices up sufficiently to cover the wage increase two or three times over. There seemed to be a sort of understanding between the employers and the miners that by staging a quarrel every so often and pulling off a strike both sides could feather their nests at the expense of the public.

The cry of "Wolf, wolf" has been raised so often, however, that it has lost some of its terrors. Perhaps this time it will be disregarded by the country at large. If so, the miners are likely to find that the wolf has really come at last, with nobody to help them withstand his onslaught.

The coal diggers' vacation is a voluntary affair, but it means an enforced vacation, without pay, for other workers in the same region. About 10,000,-railroad employes handling the output of the mines will be laid off because there is nothing for them to do. Merchants in the anthracite district will feel the effects of the strike in a greatly decreased volume of business. These are some of the people who must help to pay for the miners' vacation.

It may turn out in the end, however, that the miners themselves and their families are the ones who will pay mostly dearly for the layoff they are taking. The limit has been reached, so far as prices on anthracite fuel are concerned, and unless the miners back down on their demands the workings will doubtless remain closed for an indefinite period, because the operators cannot pass on the cost of another wage increase to consumers. If the miners eventualy give in, it will signify that their power as an organization is broken. Yet that appears to be the almost certan finale of the present suspension.

BRAVES OF THE FIVE NATIONS.

Stalwart braves of the Five Nations, greatest of Indian war alliances, still stalk the earth in the state of New York, according to a late census report, but usually they are hoeing corn or planting wheat while they stalk.

The great American city contains thousands and hundreds of thousands of foreigners from the end of the earth who are unable to talk English and she has taught millions of others to use the Anglo-Saxon tongue, but in a hundred and fifty years she has been unable to get 300 St. Regis Indians to speak the language.

Instead they speak French. They call themselves by such names as Black Chief, Cornfield, Bucktooth and others suggestive of the golden aborigine era, and some of them do not even take up agriculture, preferring to hunt for a meagre living.

It has taken a century and a half to naturalize a portion of the Indians in New York state. How long will it be before the million naturalized residents of that state have been brought to American citizenship? That is, how long will it be before they cease to speak their own language and take on that of their fellow citizens?

Far too much is spoken of 100 per cent Americanism. The expression has become a byword and few know what they mean by saying it. But this record of ineffective naturalization work with a handful of Indians is serious and calls for something very much like the 100 per cent brand. If New York can do no better with her million Europeans, two centuries from now will see the same old foreign districts and men who are willing to follow the crude ways of their European forefathers to gain a meagre living.

THE FRENCH AMAZED.

Warren Pershing, the son of the general, has astounded Paris by working in a garage during his summer vacation. A French newspaper writer who interviewed him as to the reason of his amazing conduct was informed that both the general and his son thought it a good idea. To Warren it did not seem at all surprising.

But the French, it seems, do not expect the sons of wealthy prominent families to soil their hands with toil until they have reached the age of at least 25. Therefore their astonishment

Even greater would have been their amazement had they known that John Coolidge, son of the president of the United States, worked as a farm hand before he entered college.

To Americans such things are not unusual. In fact the young man who waits until he is past twenty to begin work of some sort is branded as a no-account.

It is the energy of Americans, and their contact with the world in early life, that have made them successful. Their financial success has been made because the young men have rubbed against the world.

Perhaps if France would adopt this viewpoint and allow its cloistered youth to understand what it means to earn a living while their minds are in a formative stage, there would be less depression and more of the spirit that pulled America out of the doldrums that followed the war.

THE WORD "OBEY."

The controversy which Bishop Johnson has aroused in his effort to retain the word "obey" in the Episcopal marriage service reopens an old sore. He may win his fight but his arguments suggest that he is treading upon dangerous and somewhat hopeless ground. When Bishop Johnson pleads for man's divine right as the head of the family he is shutting his eyes to the developments of the last fifteen years. For instance nothing but hostility will be excited by his statement that "I believe fully in woman's rights, but I do not believe headship of the family is one of those."

Every extreme feminist will take sharp issue.

Yet, Bishop Johnson is discussing a subject of extreme concern to all of us. Society has come forward through hundreds of years with the family as the unit and the man, at least the nominal head. All that has been won in the struggles of the ages harks back to the home as it was constituted. Now we have made woman financially independent of the home in recent years. We have removed her from a position which in some individual cases approached serfdom but in some respects her splendid emancipation has been at the expense of the home. The world today faces a new wave of feminine philosophy, which no longer recognizes marriage and home as the ultimate, and which in a greater or less degree looks askance upon the bearing and rearing of children.

The new feminine philosophy has urged the woman to go beyond the walls of her home, to enlarge her horizon, to enter the fields of business, and industry and art and finance and education. It has suggested to her that the sacrifice and the responsibilities of the wife and mother are so great that she should hesitate to make them. Only recently an educated mother wrote to this newspaper a most passionate protest against the institution of marriage, with the expressed hope that her daughters would never marry.

Dr. Johnson's thoughts of marriage may be old-fashioned and reactionary but they are inspired by a situation which challenges attention.

More Truth Than Poetry

THE CHIRP OF AN UNLUCKY BIRD.

The easy ways of life are not for me,
I've always paid a heavy price for pleasure;
While others dodge their taxes easily,
I'm always being taxed in fullest measure;
I try to be a hopeful man in spite
Of things that never cease to be the matter;
But no fair god of chance has found delight
In handing me good things upon a platter.

I never have inherited a dime,
Nor had the favor of the influential;
My health, however, has been good, and I'm
Disposed to think of that as Providential.
My purpose is to be a decent man,
Upright, without becoming goody-goody;
I'm willing to be helpful where I can,
But my asparagus is always woody.

I've played the ponies many times, but I
Have never had the luck to pick a winner;
My soup is always chosen by the fly
If one is present where I'm eating dinner;
No goose has ever laid gold eggs for me,
Upon my chest no jeweled medals glitter;
I am, as you undoubtedly can see,
A man whose disappointments have been bitter.

I owe no debt of thanks to Chance or Fate,
For helping to work out my evolution;
In this connection, I am glad to state
That I possess a rugged constitution;
A hundred times at least I've had the hope
That by tomorrow I'd be sitting pretty,
But always something has upset the dope,
The spinach that I get is always gritty.

HOW MUCH SUGAR?

Within the past few years the American public has increased its sugar consumption several times per capita. Diabetes, that dangerous disease caused by a too great body sugar content, has increased each year in proportion to national use of sweets, and, unless precaution are immediately taken, represents a great national problem.

Everybody likes candy, cake, sweetmeats, and sugar containing foods, and most of us indulge in those things without any thought of the harm our system may suffer from our doing so.

The pancreas is an elongated ach, and in spite of its smallness ness in size and in weight is of gland lying just behind the stomexceeding importance to our physical well being. The function of the pancreas is to supply a secretion that utilizes body sugar.

When the pancreas becames diseased its function is no longer performed normally, and, as a result, the sugar taken into the body is not converted into fuel or heat energy. The immediate sympton function is an appearance of sugar of the failure of proper pancreatic in the urine. When sugar appears in the urine you may rest assured that you have diabetes.

Chronic infections are, as a rule, the usual causes of pancreatic disease. Infection of the teeth, tonsils, or gall-bladder all too often lead to trouble in the pancreas with attendant trouble from that organ appearing sooner or later.

Diseases of the heart and arteries, or even syphilis with its many complications may be responsible for a failure of normal pancreatic functioning. Another interesting point in connection with pancreatic disease is the fact that it can be inherited.

Dissections on the bodies of people dying from pancreatic diseases have, almost invariably, shown an abnormality of the pituitary gland at the base of the brain. Conversely, an overaction of the pituitary gland produces a lowered tolerance for sugar, showing that the relation between these two glands is very intimate indeed.

We might liken the relationship of these glands to our group of friends. All are inter-dependent for normal useful lives, but the misfortunes of one are felt by all.

"Temperance in all things." Remember that, and don't overtax the machinery that disposes of surplus sugar. Machinery wears out, and your body machinery may do that if you continue indiscretions.

A very brilliant Canadian physician has given insulin to the world. Don't let that lead you to excessive eating of sugared foods—let it be a haven or refuge if you are already suffering from diabetes.

If you would live to ripe old age, remember, that most ripe things are sweet—but in a short time tend to decay and die.

Questions And Answers

Questions on health topics may be addressed to Dr. Perry, in care of this newspaper.

Q. The other night I went to a dance, and and my ankles are very painful since. What would cause this?—E. S. S.

A. Probably a slightly strained ligament, due to too much exercise in narrow, high heeled shoes. Massage and bathing in hot and cold water will relieve the condition, but hygienic dancing shoes will prevent its occurrence after future dances.

The Worst Story I Have Heard Today
By Will Rogers

The worst story I heard today wastold mo by Major Gordon W. Lillie better known as Pawnee Bill. You all know him; he had the big wild west show for a long time and it was finally united with the Buffalo Bill show during his last years. Well, every time you paid 50 cents or a dollar at the front entrance of his show before you got inside and bought your program and lemonade and peanuts, why your 50 cents was on its way to a bank in Pawnee, Okla. He was the only showman and banker combined in the world. He has a beautiful home and ranch at Pawnee where he keeps over a hundred head of buffalo, just to look at.

Well he come to New York this week to call on J. P. Morgan to lay out their year's program. I went down to the Pennsylvania hotel to see him; he was a great friend of my father and I had worked for Pawnee Bill here in Madison Square Garden. Well he told me a story:

One time out at his ranchhouse there was a terrible lot of rats. He let it be known around the town of Pawnee that he would give $50 to anybody that could get rid of them. One day a feller showed up that said he was a regular professional rat killer.

"Go to work," said Pawnee Bill.

"I must have a pound of cheese," said the killer. That, of course, was provided.

"Now give me a quart of whiskey," he said. The major's pre-war cellar was raided for the necessary quart.

"Now show me the cellar," said the rodent expert.

About an hour elapsed when all at once this ratter party bounded up the steps. His face was red, his eyes were glaring and he was shaking his fists at the world defiantly and as he jumped high in the air he shouted:

"Whoopee! I'm ready. Now bring on your rats!"

And Pawnee told me, "I have no doubt that if we had been able to bring them he would have killed every one of them. He didn't misrepresent a thing. He was the best equipped human rat trap I ever heard of."

EARLY MOVEMENT POTATOES HEAVY

Report Nebraska Shipments 70 Per Cent Larger Last Year Than 1924; Prices Good.

(Associated Press.)

Shipments of early Nebraska potatoes are 70 per cent larger than last year's movement to date and prices to growers this year have been exceptionally good, A. E. Anderson, federal and state crop statistician, said Monday.

"Early Nebraska potatoes are moving rapidly at good prices," his report said, "as compared to last year when the movement was slow and prices low. Potatoes have averaged $2.30 per hundred pounds and shipments to date exceed 300 cars with a total income to farmers of $170,000."

Last year, Mr. Anderson said, prices were so low that potatoes were hardly worth harvesting and this resulted in a decrease of 1,200 acres in the early Nebraska potato crop. Yields in general are somewhat better this year. Irrigated fields in the Kearney district are yielding heavily while dry land potatoes are relatively poor.

Early Nebraska potatoes usually come on the market after most of the Kansas and Missouri crops are moved. The latter area was short and marketed a little over half the number of cars sold last year. This resulted in a heavy demand for the Nebraska crop and aided prices.

The prospects for the late commercial crop in western Nebraska were given as good. Present indications, the report said, are that prices will be very good due to the short crop in the leading late potato states. The farm crop of potatoes in eastern and southern Nebraska is poor this year and there should be a heavy local demand for the western Nebraska supply.

VETERANS MEET AT GRAND RAPIDS

Forty-three States Represented a Fifty-ninth G. A. R. Encampment.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Aug. 31.—(AP)—The pages of American history were turned backward in this gaily decorated city Sunday as the defending hosts of the union of sixty and more years ago gathered at the call of their commander-in-chief.

Faded blue uniforms, which once formed the background of the battalions of volunteers in the armies of McClellan, Grant, Sherman and Sheridan, covered the forms of aged but proudly alert veterans of the G. A. R.

From forty-three states the vets came for their fifty-ninth annual encampment and reunion with old comrades of the '60's.

Allied organizations, including the National Women's Relief corps, Ladies of the G. A. R., the National Alliance Daughter of Veterans and Sons of Veterans, held informal meetings.

Registration of the veterans is scheduled today. Ten thousand are expected. Tonight a historical pageant is planned, depicting the spirit of the Grand Army of the Republic.

MADE A MISTAKE IN CONSTITUTION

Browne Says That Stock Provision Should Have Been Statutory If At All.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 31.—(By the Associated Press.)—The question of whether no-par stock should be permitted or prohibited in Nebraska, or any state, is not a question to be embodied in the constitution as was the case in Nebraska but should be confined to statute. This opinion was expressed by Thorne A. Browne, chairman of the Nebraska railway commission, in an address prepared for delivery before the American Bar association meeting here today.

The constitution of Nebraska forbids corporations of that state from issuing no-par stock. This new provision, Chairman Browne said, was not carried in the fundamental law of the state prior to 1920.

"Whether we agree that no-par stock solves many corporate problems and should be fostered, or find ourselves very hostile to the idea, we can all agree that this provision ought not to be in a state constitution," he asserted. "It is a matter that should have been confined to statute.

"Something more than a prima facie case appears to be already made out for no-par stock. Something like 35 states have given their approval, some with lavish liberality and some with niggardly hand. Most of these laws have been passed in the last seven or eight years. Such development of legislation along a particular line could only occur when potent arguments have been presented.

"Customer ownership is being urged as a highly advisable method of keeping in touch with the public and making the public more nearly familiar with the financial and operating problems of public utilities. I think it is extremely sound doctrine.

But in my opinion if it is to be successful in the long run such stock owned by the public must be voting stock. It is not a matter of rendering uncertain the control and management of the utility, but solely that the customer owner feels more closely allied to the utility if annually he is invited to a stockholders meeting or is asked to send a proxy.

"No-par stock is usually voting stock but I do not believe it is possible to sell no par stock widely in customer ownership. If that is true and if it is conceded the customer owner should have the privilege of voting then a rather pronounced objection may exist against no par stock for public utilities."

Heavy Movement of Spring Wheat Weakens Market

(Associated Press)

The wheat market was materially weakened during the past week by a heavier movement of spring wheat to United States markets and prospects of an earlier movement of the Canadian crop than usual together with larger threshing returns than were expected in some areas. This resume was given Monday in the weekly grain market review of the United States department of agriculture.

Continued improvement in the crop prospects for corn together with a fairly liberal movement was weakening the market for this grain and prices in the future markets reached new low levels for the new crop year.

Favorable conditions prevailed for the completion of spring wheat harvesting in the northwest and for the beginning of the Canadian harvest. Crop reports from Canada indicated the crop may be learger than forecast August 1. Receipts of wheat from sections of North Dakota where severe heat damage had been reported showed good quality. Receipts of spring wheat increased but were readily absorbed by mills. Winter wheat markets weakened during the week but receipts continued light with farmers inclined to hold for higher prices.

With continued favorable crop prospects country shipments of corn increased. The oats market declined with corn. Rye was weaker with wheat.

AUTO FATALITIES SHOW REDUCTION

Deaths In Fifty-Seven Cities For Month Ending August 15 Were 368.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—(By the Associated Press.)—Automobile fatalities showed a sharp drop in seven American cities during the four weeks ending August 15, the department of commerce reporting the total today at 368, as compared with 417 during the preceding four weeks' period ending July 18.

From January 1 to August 15, the department's figures showed 2,818 deaths for the entire year 1924 were 4,992, an increase from the 1925 total which was 4,827. The aggregate population of the cities was estimated at 27,000,000.

New Redford, with but two deaths and none occurring during the last four weeks' period, still holds the low record for this year among cities of 100,000 or more population.

Chicago's total of forty-five fatalities was the same as reported during the preceding four weeks, bringing its total for the year to 344. Among cities where an increase was shown were Los Angeles, with 17 and 139, and San Francisco, with 18 and 63.

LAY PLANS FOR CANTON CLASH

Reds of China Digging Trenches Around City In Preparation For Battle.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31—(By the Associated Press.)—Cablegrams form Canton, delayed by the strikes and disorders there, received here last night say that the reds, (chinese declared under Russian bolshevik influence) are digging trenches around the city in preparation for conflict.

Hu Hon-Min civil governor of Kwantung province, in which Canton is situated, is reported to be in Whampoa, on the island of that name, which lies in the river between Canton and the sea. Hu-Hon-Min's home in Canton was reported earlier in the week to be under military guard to protect him.

The Kwantung soldiers, the antireds, are being disarmed by the opposing faction, which is said to be causing a continuance of the unrest which had prevailed in the city for many weeks.

Film Moguls Dangle Offer Before Jack

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug 31—(AP)—A motion picture bout for the heavyweight boxing championship of the world loomed ahead as William Harrison Dempsey, film star and champion prize fighter, went into conference here with Louis B. Mayer, film play producer, to discuss the possibility of staging a title bout in Los Angeles between Dempsey and Harry Wills, his persistent negro challenger.

Although the proposed bout will be a motion picture battle, in the sense that it will be financed by motion picture money and fought in front of a battery of cameras, spokesmen for Dempsey and Mayer made it clear that it would be a bonafide championship bout—not just another Dempsey film.

Mayer and other film capitalists are said to have assured the champion at a conference that they would offer terms at least as favorable as any he could expect from eastern promoters.

The date for the proposed bout is July 4, 1926, the same as that on which Floyd Fitzsimmons, Indiana promoter, recently announced he would stage a Wills-Dempsey fight in some middle-western arena.

Wires Kearns Offer To Buy Contract

NEW YORK, Aug 31.—(AP)—Charlie Rose, manager of Bartley Madden and eastern representative of Floyd Fitzsimmons, Michigan Michigan City, Ind., promoter, today wired to Jack Kearns offering $150,000 for Jack Dempsey's contract.

"Would you be willing to sell your contract with Jack Dempsey? Will give you $150,000 cash. Will leave for Los Angeles immediately upon answer to this wire if you mean business."

PRAISE FOR TY IN TIGERTOWN

Detroiters Render Homage To Greatest Player In National Game.

DETROIT, Mich., Aug. 31.—(A. P.)—Tyrus Raymond Cobb of Augusta, Ga., and Detroit, was described as "the greatest ball player of all time" by Ban Johnson, president of the American league, Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, and other persons at the great testimonial dinner to Cobb, which lasted into the early hours of Sunday morning.

Banqueteers described the event as one of the most unique and enthusiastic gatherings of the kind they ever attended. It is believed to be the first time that a major league ball player has been similarly honored by an official testimonial, sponsored by the municipality itself.

It was a magnificent culmination of 20 vigorous, record-breaking years in the American league for the "peach." The eulogies of his exploits poured forth with eloquence and continuity until the time came for Cobb himself to speak. He was so greatly moved by what had been said that he could only deprecate his own exploits and express regrets that he had not accomplished more.

Recipient of $10,000 Check.

After thanking Mayor John W. Smith and the city of Detroit for the $1,000 grandfather clock given him, and Frank J. Navin and other owners of the Detroit baseball club for the check for $10,000, which was presented, Cobb said:

"Now I see how selfish I have been. My career has been selfish—nothing else. I have done no great good that you should so signally honor me. Oh why didn't I try to do more?

"Much of what success I may have had has been due in a large measure to the help of others, especially the owners of the Detroit club and the Detroit baseball public.

Hundreds of telegrams felicitating Cobb on the completion of twenty years of American league service were read. Among these were telegram from Tris Speaker, George Sisler, Miller Huggins, Ring Lardner, Hendrik W. Van Loon, Garry Herrmann, M. H Sexton and Honus Wagner, the last named Cobb's nearest rival for many baseball records.

Connie Mack, who was in baseball when Cobb made his debut in the American league, picked the four ball players he regarded as the best in the game today, placing Cobb at the head of them as "baseball's greatest players."

The others picked by Mack were Eddie Collins, manager of the Chicago Americans; Tris Speaker, manager of the Cleveland Indians, and Walter Johnson of the Washington club.

Touching the Bases.

Sam Rice tripled the Senators into a lead they never surrendered and was instrumental thereby in giving the White Sox their third straight defeat, this time, 9 to 6.

The champion Senators drew farther ahead of the Athletics in the standing, increasing their lead to three and a half games.

The Giants tightened their hold on second place, but could not gain on the Pirates in a double bill with the Cardinals. Barnes' pitching and Frisch's batting gave the McGraw men the first game, 3 to 1, but Sotheron gained an 8 to 0 decision in the second.

The Tigers went their seventh in a row, 7 to 4, on the wildness of Walberg and Rommel of the Athletics, keeping their own Mr. Stoner out of trouble by staunch support.

Wilbert Robinson's Dodgers turned back the Reds in a doubleheader, 4 to 3 and 10 to 8. The first debate lasted ten innings, being disreputed by Hargrave's double. The night cap was a free swinging affair.

The Ruth-less Yankees managed to take another defeat as a conclusion for their western tour, hard hitting being of no avail when combined with free booting. The Browns gathered a 7 to 6 victory, Wanninger's three errors helping.

COUNTY FAIRS IN SWING TUESDAY

Many Smaller Agricultural Expositions In State Begin September 1.

Farm and Its Products, Boys and Girls Entries, Racing on Program.

(Associated Press)

The annual Nebraska county fair season will get into full swing Tuesday.

Prize horses, manes are carefully raided with red, white and blue yarn, cattle have their coats marcelled, and pig club entries have been pomaded and oiled in preparation for the annual show season.

Calf and pig club boys have spent months under the tutilage of their leaders training their entries to pose with the grace and poise of a Paris manikin in preparation for the month of prizes and honors.

The American fair idea, believed to have originated in 1810 in New York, will be carried out on the largest scale in Nebraska's history this fall, in the opinion of the state fair board.

The farm and its products in nearly every county of this agricultural state will be brought before the eyes of the Nebraskans through a series of local fairs and expositions. The fair board estimates that in the United States this year approximately 25,000,000 persons will attend county, district and state fairs this year.

The Lincoln chamber of commerce is making arrangements to accommodate 300,000 persons at the Nebraska state fair which opens here September 6. Road markers have been placed along all the highways leading into Lincoln, directing motorists to Nebraska's largest agricultural exposition.

Congressmen to Speak.

One of the largest district enterprises, aside from the state fair, is the mid-Nebraska exposition at Columbus the third week in September, at which two congressmen, Philip Hill of Baltimore, Md., and William D. Upshaw, Atlanta Ga., will discuss the prohibition question. While they will play a major part in the program hundreds of exhibits and other entertainment features will be afforded.

The Dodge county fair opens Tuesday with baseball, circus acts, dancing and agricultural exhibits featuring the four day program.

On the same dates the Dawson county fair will be held at Lexington. Horse races, auto races, motion pictures and farm exhibits are advertised. The Central City fair will be held September 14 to 17 inclusive. Educational value will be stressed at this fair by school and civic activities.

The Cuming county agricultural society opened its third annual fair at West Point Monday. Two new buildings this year, the merchant's building and the calf club barn, make ten buildings for exhibits alone. Over sixty boys and girls have entered in club exhibits.

This year's Fillmore county fair, September 15 to 18, will be celebrated at the golden anniversary of the Fillmore county agricultural society at Geneva and a new building will be dedicated.

The Nance county fair, which opens September 17, is described as the county's "biggest and best fair in history." The large fair building has been ordered reroofed and remodeled by the county board to provide better facilities for exhibits.

Historical Pageant.

The Dawes county fair opens at Chadron Tuesday for four days. A mammoth historical pageant will feature the entertainment program while the display of agricultural products and livestock will be the largest ever seen in the county and a large exhibit will be sent to the state fair.

The Thurston county fair which opens for four days at Walthill Wednesday has been supplemented by American Legion activities, which are expected to add greatly to the entertainment. Boys and girls club work and a large number of agricultural display will feature the exhibits.

The Greeley county fair gets into full swing the same day with a $3,000 derby featured. Promoters of the race meet expect from 100 to 150 race horses to be entered for the three-day racing program.

Holdrege will celebrate this year with races by minature automobiles. This feature, however, is only a part of a big racing program with standard-sized cars.

The Clay county fair will feature a number of prize corn and agricultural exhibits.

Two booster trips will advertise the Colfax county fair. The first trip was scheduled for Monday, while the second will be made Tuesday. The fair starts September 8.

Herman Harvey, with eighteen head of thoroughbred Shire horses, made a tour to advertise the Adams county fair. He will bring his exhibits to the Nebraska state fair.

More Livestock Entered.

"More cattle, hogs and horses have been entered this year for the Hamilton county fair than ever before," Secretary W. C. Eloe said Monday. The fair will open at Aurora Tuesday and the secretary has promised a representative exhibit of "Hamilton county's best crop." A racing program will also feature the fair.

The Douglas county fair will get under way at Waterloo September 15 with a large list of exhibits and attractions. Sarpy county day will be observed there September 18.

Antelope county's five day fair begins September 15 and will be featured by collective exhibits from each township in the county.

The Dixon county fair at Concord, opening Tuesday is advertised as "bigger and better than ever," while the Colfax county exposition at Leigh, September 8 to 11, has added several entertainment measures and a ball game each day.

A big stock show will add interest to the Thayer county fair this year at Deshler opening Tuesday for four days.

In addition to its regular line of exhibit features, Nuckolls county is preparing for a large fair at Nelson the last of the month for automobile races.

"A new entertainment feature each day" is the way Saunders county advertises its annual show September 15 to 18.

Active preparations are being made by many Nebraskans to exhibit at the 1925 interstate fair at Sioux City beginning September 23.

Improved Pastures Weaken Hay Market Tone in Past Week

(Associated Press.)

With pasturage improving in the Ohio valley and middle plains regions hay market developed a weaker tone during the past week, the United States department of agriculture reported Monday.

Liberal receipts and limited demand weakened the eastern markets. Central west timothy markets were steady. Receipts were light at Chicago but were increasing at Kansas City where demand was also less active. The receipt of 250 cars of alfalfa at Kansas City was in excess of current demand and prices worked lower Mills and dairies were active buyers of the better grades and there was a scattered shipping demand to the south and southeast. The market for alfalfa at Omaha was firm and choice quality sold at large premiums but ordinary grades were practically unchanged.

The movement of prairie hay increased at most markets during the week. Prairie hay harvesting is practically completed and a crop of good quality hay is reported in most sections. The bulk of the receipts at Omaha still were from Kansas and were not large. No. 1 prairie was quoted at $13 there. At Kansas City prairie receipts exceeded demand, prices declined to $11 and some hay was reshipped.

Bambino Takes Appeal From Decree by Huggins

BABE TAKES HIS CASE TO LANDIS

Ruth Shows Up In Chicago, But Finds Commissioner Is Out of Town.

Then Heads for Gotham To Hand Out "Knock" On Team Manager.

FAILS TO SEE LANDIS.

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—Failing in his efforts to see Judge K. M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, today to plead his case in having the fine and suspension imposed on him by Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees, lifted Babe Ruth planned to leave for New York on the Twentieth Century and put his case before Colonel Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York club.

Ruth called this morning at Judge Landis' office and was informed that the commissioner was at his summer home at Burt Lake, Mich., and would not be back in Chicago until Wednesday. Rather than wait, Babe will go to New York.

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—Babe Ruth may be through with organized baseball.

The former "home run king" said so himsel when he came to Chicago to personally lay before Judge K. M. Landis, high commissioner of baseball, an appeal to have the fine and suspension imposed on the "king of swat" by Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees, lifted.

He is going to tell the judge that Huggins was all wrong in imposing the fine and suspending him.

Babe let it be known that he would never play ball with the New York Yankees again as long as Miller Huggins was manager. He admits, though, that the New York American league club officials hold in their hands his future as far as playing with any other American or National league club is concerned.

Claimes Huggins Stupid.

Ruth alleged infrictions of official orders on the playing field from Manager Huggins were set down by Ruth as "a clashing of baseball judgement."

Ruth intimated that at times Huggins was "stupid."

Ban Johnson president of the American league, has the following to say on the Ruth case:

"Any man who dissipates has no place on a ball club. Manager Huggins is right. Ruth is getting only what is coming to him."

The Babe would like to have it known that he will never play with the New York club again as long as Miller Huggins is the manager.

He will not appear with an American or National league club next season unless the management of the New York team says so.

Asks For Fair Break.

And the Babe doubts very much that the New York club will allow him to be bargained for.

"The public has read about me as a rounder, a tramp and a chaser," he said. "I have been charged with drinking, with breaking training rules, with jeopardizing the ball club's chances. I only ask for a fair break from the fans who have aided me in my prominence in the game."

The Babe summed up his denials in the following statements, each emphasized by a thump of his fist on a writing desk:

"I have not been drinking.

"I am in better condition right now than I have been all season.

"I have kept strictly to training rules, with slight exceptions, and these infractions were minor. No one with a conscience can hold them against me.

"I have been made the goat of the New York ball club this season.

"Manager Huggins is responsible.

"He is the dumbest manager who ever tried to run a big league ball club."

"Will you sign next year if the New York club attempts to cut your salary to $10,000 a season?" Ruth was asked.

Under Contract to Yanks.

"My contract for the 1926 season calls for the same amount that I am receiving this season," he replied. "However, my contract does not entitle to this amount. The New York club can break this contract I have no protection. I belong to the New York club. If it holds my baseball future on its hands, I am through. If they will not trade me, I am helpless, I am merely a slave."

"Since you will not play with New York, what would you do in case the club refused to place you on the market," he was asked.

"I am not worrying," Ruth said. "I can pick any one of a number of enterprises. The financial angle does not worry me."

Irritated By Gossip.

Stories to the effect that Ruth was "broke" irritated the husky socker.

"I can take care of myself as far as money is concerned," Ruth stated emphatically.

Writer Pleads for Ruth.

BOSTON, Aug. 31.—"Babe Ruth has always been the golden hearted bad boy of baseball. Club rules have not meant a thing to him. He has lived his care free life, filled with gayety in his light-hearted way. It was the same in 1919, 1920 and 1921, the big years of Ruth's baseball career, as it is today. But when the Bambino was delivering the big punch out on the field, the club owners and managers overlooked the fact that he neglected to retire at night until the small hours of the morning."

Thus did Jack Conway, baseball writer of the Boston Evening American, who has known Ruth since the Babe first broke into the big league with Bill Carrigan's Red Sox, today sum up the case of Ruth.

Says He Saved Game.

"Ruth's ability at hitting home runs saved baseball in the days following the scandal in which the White Sox players threw a world series to Cincinnati for gold," said Conway.

"He diverted the public attention from the bold confessions of some of the White Sox players to the thrill of the national pastime. Every club in the American league has made thousands of dollars out of Ruth's individual efforts.

Wrong Means Chosen.

"I do not defend Ruth's actions, but I think that some other means could have been devised to correct his faults other than humiliating him before the general public.

"The iron heel o fdiscipline should not be used to crush the spirit of the good hearted Babe, who has given his all to baseball just as freely as he assists every needy person who calls upon him for aid."

HERE AND THERE IN BASEBALL

Links at Home Tuesday.

Getting an even break on their final southern junket of the pennant season, winning seven and losing an equal number, Maager Josh Clarke and his Links are due to perform Tuesday afternoon at Landis Field in the first game of a six-day stand. The Omaha Rods, occupants of the league cellar, and the Links will clash in a three-game series, after which the Denver Bears, pennant contenders, will oppose the Clarke clan in a three-game engagement having its windup next Sunday.

Record for the past month discloses that the Links have been going at a first-division clip. Even though the Clarke club probably has no chance to climb out of the second division, the Links are no longer a set-up for any aggregation on the Tearney circuit.

Lincoln fans are given this reminder: Home games during the final month of the season will begin will get under way at 3 o'clock pertain to the five first days of the week. Saturday and Sunday games will bet under way at 3 o'clock and doubleheaders at two.

A lot of Lincoln fans had suspected it, but now they know to a certainty that Big Boy Shaner lugs the speediest pair of dogs of the Lincoln club roster. Shaner proved it Sunday in the field meet with the Wichita Izzies in which he outsprinted Eddie Moore, Gooch and three venturesome athletes on the Wichita roster.

Iron-Man Wins Two Games

As an "iron-man," Andy Anderson of the Meridian, Miss., club in the Cotton States league is recommended to the scouts. He pitched two games in one afternoon against Jackson and won both, letting down the opposition with ten hits and six runs for both.

President Clark Griffith of Washington is doing his own scouting. He is trailing some American association stars, principally Louisville players.

Elmer Tutwiler, a 20-year old pitcher for the Laurel team in the Cotton States, hurled a no-hit, no-run game against Alexandria last Thursday.

Washington now has two "world's champion's" the capital type-setters winning the championship in the Printers league.

Hank Gowdy simply can't keep idle. The veteran catcher is now scouting on the Pacific Coast for the Giants.

"Muddy" Ruel worked as hard as his battery mate, Ferguson, did in the first game with the Chicago White Sox. He accepted 13 chances, of which twelve were putouts. Ferguson fanned nine, which helped.

Vean Gregg may not be able to fool major league batters, but he has a few twists left in his arm, as is evident by his victory for New Orleans over Chattanooga in his first appearance in the Southern association last Friday.

NATION'S BEST IN NATIONAL OPEN

Cream of American Golfers Tees Off In Title Tournament.

BY DAVIS J. WALSH.

OAKMONT COUNTRY CLUB, Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 31. — Take careful aim at a knothole with a bucket of water at ten paces and, after proceeding to the opposite side of the fence, you will be able to collect the residue in a thimble.

That was the situation prevailing today when a field of 138 starters left the barrier in the qualifying round of the national amateur golf championship. Only sixteen of them will be with us by Tuesday night. Just sixteen places for which they can contest over a two-day trial of 36 holes and the entry list simply bristling with champions past, present and in prospect.

Some of our best people probably will be on the wrong side of the turnstile when they close the gates Tuesday night.

Roll of Former Champions.

The writer names no names. He merely mentions the fact that there are sixteen places in the qualifying elect and that the entries include the present champion, Bobby Jones, and eight former holders of the title—Bob Gardner, Max Martson, W. C. Fownes, jr., Francis Oulmet, Jesse Guilford, Chick Evans, David Herron and Jesse Sweetzer.

In addition, there were the 1924 finalist and the 1924 medalist, respectively, George Von Elm and D. Clark Corkran, to be considered.

Giving every man his due, that would seem to leave only five places for the button-hole makers, of which there were plenty. By way of establishing character, I will mention Don Carrick, Canadian champion; Keefe Carter, western champion; Roland McKenzie, W. H. Gardner, Fred Knight, K. Jack Mackie, George Heffner, Woody Platt, Clarence Wolf, Ira Couch, Winthrop Horsey, John Anderson, Jim Manion, Lee Chase, J. M. Wells, Arthur Yates, Reggie Lewis, Rudie Knepper, Chris Dunphy, Densmore Shute, Dexter Cummings, Eddie Held, Ellsworth Augustus, Eddie Lowry and the usual host of others too numerous to mention.

Every Man for Himself.

It was not to be a qualifying round in the accepted sense of the term. It was to be a stampede, with every man for himself and not hitting with paving blocks.

The 16-men qualifying round was an innovation to championship play. So was the fact that the course measured all of 7,000 yards, with the base tees in use and a course that was pock-marked with more than 200 traps.

Everything in fact, pointed to a good time being had by all when Tom Devene, Harrisburg, Pa., and Stephen Foster, Jacksonville, official pioneers and trail blazers, left the first tee at 9:30 o'clock this morning. They were, of course, competitive button-hole makers, the elite being undisturbed at this unseemly hour.

Marston and Gardner.

The first pair of national interest did not appear until 10:05, when Martson and Bob Gardner stepped out for their round. They were followed a half hour later by Jones and Carter, with Oulmet and Carrick a comparative few minutes in the rear. These pairs drew the galleries as the ballyhoo draws the come-on.

Perfect weather graced the scene, the immediate prospect, however, being for a warm day and a merry one.

TITLE GAME ENDS IN 5-5 TIE SCORE

Darkness Halts Efforts of Cleaners and Shogos At End of Ninth.

Playoff Must Be Staged To Decide Championship of Sandlotters.

TITLE GAME SEPT. 13.

President Howard Barrett of the Lincoln Amateur Baseball announced today that the Shogo Lithia and Varsity Cleaners clubs will play off their city tournament championship tie Sunday, Sept. 13, at Landis Field.

Wiederspan's Texas leaguer, which dropped into center field in the ninth inning and was good for two bases, scored two runs and enabled the Shogo Lithias to pull into a 5-5 tie in the Sunday game, billed to decide the Lincoln amateur baseball championship. Wiederspan's two-ply effort came after two batters had been retired. The game was called at the end of the ninth because of darkness.

Roth, Varsity Cleaner twirler, held the Shogos to four hits and was given good support, but his wildness was costly. The Cleaners sent Lebsock to the showers in the fourth inning and Bretzers, who had turned back the Munsons in the curtain-raiser, was called back to duty. Bretzer allowed, but two hits the remainder of the contest.

Shogos Defeat Munsons.

The Shogo Lithias went into the the finals by defeating the Munsons in the first game of the triple bill, 5 to 4. The Shogos nicked Witte, who started on the hill for Munsons, for three runs and found Kaiser for two more. The Munsons were trailing two runs in the ninth, but tossed a scare into the Shogo camp by scoring a run on three singles and a error after two men were down.

Ragged work in the field on the part of the Modern Woodmen and heavy stick work by the Cleaners enabled the Varsity Cleaners to come through with an 8-6 victory over the Axe-wielders in the second game.

The Cleaners found Latta for six runs and added a couple more off Gilliland. The husky Woodman ace went to the mound in the and was touched for six hits. The Woodmen located Floth for nine safeties, but tight fielding by the Cleaners, including a pair of neat double plays, steamed the tide. The official scores:

WITH THE AMATEURS.

Sunday was a bad day for catchers. Catcher Gross of the Shogo Lithias split a finger in the first game, but returned to catch the second game. Catcher Gerlach of the Cleaners split a finger on his throwing hand in the second inning of the final game and Manager Lee Sipe finished behind the bat.

Centerfielder Jack Little of the Munsons contributed a dandy catch in the curtain-raiser. Little raced in and made a one-hand catch of Wiederspan's short fly. He got the ball near his shoe tips and doubled Buckley off third.

The Munsons were inclined to say it with words throughout the first contest. Oxenhardt was ordered out of the game in the second inning by Umpire Dye and Umpire Miller sent Lebsack to the showers in the seventh.

Third-baseman Zichek of the Shogos slammed out two doubles and a pair of singles in four accredited times at bat in the curtain-raiser. He failed to connect, however, with Roth's offerings in the finale.

Shortstop Runyan of the Cleaners handled thirteen chances in the two games without a bobble.

Miller Huggins Kidded Again About Height

BY AL DEMAREE.

Miller Huggins, the midget manager of the New York Yankees, has to stand for a lot of kidding about his small stature, and it sometimes leads to a good laugh.

"Bull Neck" Guthrie, former American league umpire, was calling the balls and strikes one day in New York. It was a close, hotly-contested game and the players were scrapping for everything. A close play came up at the plate and Guthrie called "Whitey" Witt, the base runner out. "Whitey" let out an awful squawk at the decision and was finally put of the game. While Witt and Guthrie were arguing at the plate, Huggins came charging from the bench to lodge a protest.

"Get out of the game!" Guthrie roared at Witt, and then, glancing over his shoulder and seeing the diminutive Huggins rushing up, he added, without even turning his back, "and take the bat boy with you!" I often wonder if this ever cost his job as umpire in the league.

EVEN DIVISION BY LINKS AND IZZIES

Clarke Outfit Splits With Wichita In Sunday's Twin Bill.

Links Grab First Game By Lop-Sided Score; Purdy Socks Five Hits.

WICHITA, Kas., Aug. 31.—Josh Clarke's Links rounded out their last southern tour of the 1925 Western league season by breaking ever with the Izzies in a Sunday double bill.

The Links pounded three Wichita pitchers—Jolly, Hovlik and Gregory—for twenty safe blows, while Ted Pillette was holding the Izzies to eight hits, and the Clarke outfit literally romped in, winning the first game by a margin of 18 to 4.

Jimmie Christian, on the mound for the Links in starting the windup combat, was victim of a streak of wildness and was stung for six runs in the three opening frames. Pallas was substituted, but the Izzies also liked his offerings, and Cooper came on to go to the finish of the seven-inning fray. Campbell, meantime, pitched effectively for the Izzies and the home team evened the count by grabbing victory, 10 to 3.

Purdy Poles Two Homers.

Purdy's hitting easily featured the Lincoln attack, the Links' left fielder smacking two homers and a two-sacker in the first game and a double and single in the second.

Links and Izzies competed in a field meet during the intermission between the two games. Shaner, Moore and Gooch outfooted the Izzies' entries in a 75-yard dash, Corgan, Morehart and Smith finishing back of the Lincoln sprinters. Catcher Wales of the Links won the accurate throwing contest and Gregory of the Izzies took first in a test of pitching control, with Cooper of Lincoln and Penner of Wichita tied for second. Outfielder Payne of Wichita was winner of the long distance throw, while Shaner and Purdy of the Links were second and third. In a relay race at circling the bases, Smith and Morehart of Wichita were declared winners over Shaner and Moore of Lincoln. The Sunday scores:

Athletics Skid; Lose Series To Detroit Tigers

DETROIT, Aug. 31—(AP)—Detroit made a clean sweep of the three-game series with Philadelphia by winning yesterday's game, 7 to 4. It was the seventh consecutive victory for the Tigers. Stoner was in difficulty much of the time, but smart support kept Philadelphia scoreless for the first five innings. Hale's double and Simmons' single gave the Athletics one in the sixth, while Simmons' home run in the following inning scored Bishop, who had walked, and Hale, who had singled. Wildness by Walberg, and Rommel, who succeeded him gave Detroit four runs in the third inning on two hits. Four men got triples to first in this inning after Woodall and Stoner had scored in succession. Detroit bunched four hits off Rommel in the sixth for three more runs. By innings: R H E

Market Quotations

GRAIN MARKETS.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Ill., Aug. 31.

An unexpected decrease of the United States visible supply total did a good deal to lift the wheat market today in the late dealings. The decrease coming at this time coincident with the completion of the domestic spring wheat harvest, gave special emphasis to the slowness of accumulation of which resulted from the after harvest movement of winter wheat. Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as Saturday's finish to ¾c higher, December $1.53½@1.53¾ and May $1.57⅝@1.57¾.

WHEAT—Wheat prices took an early swing downward today, influenced to a considerable extent by a material decline at Liverpool. The setback in values abroad was in turn ascribed more or less to fine harvest weather being enjoyed by Great Britain and other European countries and reports of favorable crop conditions in Argentina. Some standing orders to stop losses at various fixed limits were forced in action here by today's drop. The opening, 1⅛ to 2⅜c off, with December $1.51¼@1.52 and May $1.55½@1.56, was followed only by a slight rally.

CORN—Corn and oats were easy, sympathizing with wheat weakness. Besides receipts of corn were liberal, 224 cars. After opening unchanged to ⅝c lower, December 81½@81¾c, the corn market recovered and then went a little above Saturday's finish.

Later the corn market was affected in some degree by complaints of dry weather northwest. Corn closed irregular 1½c net lower to ⅝c gain. December 82⅛@82½c.

OATS—Oats started unchanged to ½c off, December 41⅝@41⅝c, and later held near to the initial figures.

PROVISIONS—In line with hog values the provision market was steady.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.
By the Associated Press.

Operators for the rise regained control of the price movement in today's stock market by bidding up the high priced specialties. Heavy selling of Chrysler, which broke five points soon after the opening, extended to other high priced shares, but was checked by the publication of favorable repeated commission house advices urging extreme caution in making new commitments, public participation was relative light. New peak prices for the year and substantial gains were recorded by such issues as general Railway Signal, S. S. Kresge, foundation company, Brown Shoe and International Business Machine, the gains ranging from 3 to 15 points. Midland Steel Products preferred and Otis Steel preferred turned weak on reports that large stockholders of Trumbull were dissatisfied with the proposed terms of the merger of those three companies. United Railway investment preferred broke 6⅞ points.

Uneven price movements reflecting the readjustment of speculative accounts, characterized the opening of today's stock market. Professional traders appeared to be awaiting further light on the business and money situation before materially expanding their commitments. American Can and American Waterworks showed initial recessions of 1⅛ and 1½ points, respectively.

Selling pressure centered at first against the high priced specialties. Chrysler Motors quickly ran off 5 points. General Railway Signal 4 and General Electric, Mack Trucks, White Motors, Postum and International Telephone 1 to 2 points. Operators for the rise derived some encouragement from the report of the federal reserve board showing that retail trade last month ran above the corresponding month last year and from private reports that while forward business was relatively slow, orders for prompt delivery were in large volume. Some of the early strong spots included International Shoe, Brown Shoe, May Department Stores and Frisco common. Another sharp advance in the Scandinavian rates featured the irregular exchange market. Norwegian kroner jumped nearly 50 points to 20.48, and Danish kroner advanced 25 points to 24.93 cents.

Demand sterling was slightly easier around $4.85 and French francs were unchanged at 4.69 cents.

The purchase of a block of 19,000 shares of Radio Corporation at 53 attracted an immediate speculative following, whose buying carried the price up to 55⅜. Confident accumulation of various other specialties caused the market to rally, with the high priced shares responding vigorously, Chrysler making up all its loss. General Railway Signal climbed from 355 to 366 and S. S. Kresge jumped 15 points to 590, both new high figures. Foundation Company, National Dairy Products and Brown Shoe were also quoted at new maximum figures for the year. The renewal rate on call loans was reduced to 4¼ per cent.

fellow laborers" occupied for the remainder of the contract. Many heavy tools have been removed by the men and stored away against such a time as a new contract is signed.

Suspension Order Read

Yesterday at special meeting held by most of the 325 union locals the union suspension order was read.

The miners demand a 10 per cent increase in tonnage rates, $1 a day more for day workers, the check-off, a two year contract, equalization of rates and other adjustments.

The operators insist all demands must first absolve themselves of any likelihood of any increasing production costs before than can be given consideration.

The men in turn refuse the proposal of the owners to leave the matter to arbitration and hold that negotiations are useless until the owners agree to consider demands on their merits regardless of cost. Negotiations were broken off at Atlantic City on August 4.

Reduces Freight Traffic—Competition of automobile trucks with steam carriers has helped to reduce the volume of less than carload freight traffic on all railroad lines, between points in Nebraska, from 505,000 tons in the year 1920 to 352,500 tons last year, as shown by a tabulation prepared in the state railway commission's office. In the same period, during which motor-busses have taken considerable passenger business away from the railroads, the gross revenue from ticket sales within Nebraska has fallen off from $9,720,000 to $5,686,-00, the exhibit reveals.

TWO PLANES ARE READY TO BEGIN FLIGHT

ed at a conference of flight officers with Capt. Stanford Moses, flight project commander. It will have the effect virtually of making the daring attempt a two flight project.

At 2 o'clock, unless water surface conditions should necessitate an earlier start, the two big PN-9 planes will glide from the waters of San Pablo bay, head out through the Golden Gate and steer a course direct to Kahului and then to Honolulu. The objective is Kahului, but the planes will not stop until Honolulu is reached.

Conditions Favorable

"The two PN-9 planes are ready," Captain Moses said today in explaining the decision to start the flight without one of the scheduled machines. "Weather conditions are favorable and the starting of the two planes that will go today will not detract from the sporting element of the flight as each plane will be timed and the plane making the best time declared winner.

"Success of hazardous undertaking depends upon the wind.

"In order to traverse the vast stretch of water between California and the Hawaiian islands, the planes must have the assistance of favorable trade winds. For the first six hundred miles out the planes will buck head winds, reducing their speed and eating into their precious supply of gasoline. Then they hope to run into a stiff breeze, which at their back will increase the speed of the Leviathans of the air and enable them to conserve their gas supply."

We have just enough gasoline with the added thrust of those favorable winds." commander Rodgers said today. "We must have them."

The PN-9's lay at their anchorages in San Pablo today awaiting the order to start. They were given full load tests yesterday and were pronounced in the best of condition.

CALL EXTENDED TO REV. FORD

Elmore was leaving, moved that the nomination be accepted.

Clerk John S. Bishop then read the resolution giving Rev. Elmore's record here and putting on record the regret felt for his departure. This was adopted.

A reception will be given at the church for Rev. Elmore Wednesday evening. He will preach a regular sermon next Sunday morning and then in the evening will be present at farewell services in the St. Paul Methodist church as a part of the regular Sunday evening union service.

Resolution Adopted

Following is the resolution passed:

"Dr. Wilbur T. Elmore has been our pastor from November, 1918 to September, 1925, six years and nine months, and the church has been harmonious and united and has made greater advance than ever before. There have been 770 additions, 259 by baptism. Our membership has increased from 509 to 870 and nearly all the inactive members have been dropped. The annual contributions have nearly trebled. The contributions to benevolences have been remarkable in lives and money. Of the eight consecrated and trained members of our church now missionaries on foreign fields, five have gone during the pastorate of Dr. Elmore. In addition to these there are four members in home mission work and others are preparing for mission service.

"Personal work has greatly increased, many new departments have been added and every department of the church has reflected in growth, enthusiasm and results, the invigorating and stimulating influence of Dr. Elmore and his consecrated and talent wife, an acknowledged leader among the Baptist women of the world.

"Dr. Elmore has preached a sensible, scholarly, sound, and satisfying gospel, ever consistently and continually magnifying Christ and His church. In children's sermon, pulpit editorial, drama sermons, and his regular messages from the pulpit, he has proclaimed the need of repentance and belief and the infinite love of God toward all of His children. He has been a leader in all good work, in the student council, the Council of Churches, the Ministerial association, the City Mission, the Social Welfare, and the state and northern Baptist conventions.

"He has aided in bringing about the good fellowship, confidence and friendliness so happily now existing in our denomination in city and state. He has consistently practiced what he preached, devoid of cant or pretense, his sincerity and faith appeal to and convince all who come in contact with him. He has given cheerfully of his time, talents and substance, bringing spiritual consolation to the sick and sorrowing, comfort and hope to the erring and a larger vision and renewed courage to all.

"Not only have we appreciated the work of Dr. and Mrs. Elmore, but we have also shared their pride in the growth and development of their talented children, who have contributed largely to the life of the church; Robert through his ministry of music and Rachel with her grace and poise and enthusiam among the young people.

"Dr. Elmore was ordained by this church. He has been a member for twenty five years, except the three and one half years when he was paster at Hamilton, New York. He knows its traditions, its capabilities and its needs. We have gloried in his advancement and promotion as he has steadily grown and developed in faith and power and "in favor with God and man." We believe in him and trust him and, taking strength from his example and teaching, we accept his decision to resign as our pastor, while every one desires him to stay and many have been overwhelmed with grief, at the announcement of his leaving. We wish him Godspeed in his new work for which we realize he has unusual training and qualifications."

Minerva's Mail

Take Your Troubles To Minerva

Ivory Enters Discussion.

Dear Minerva: Not long ago there was a piece in your column written by some one who wanted and intended to start something. Well, they certainly did and that wasn't half of it—they opened more than one pair of eyes of which group mine took an active role.

All the time this quibbling and quarreling has been going on I have remained silent and just observed the main reasons of these hard feelings.

First, of all I shall start on "Straight and Narrow." Were I that girl, I certainly would never advertise my predicament and I certainly wouldn't brag about it. A girl can keep her lips pure by being kissed once in a while if she has the good sense to watch the young people whom she chooses as her associates. The majority of the girls who go the wrong path are the ones who take the pride in saying indirectly that they are not promiscuous. When loves comes they won't know what it is and if it is only infatuation they think they are surely in love and then things happen.

They usually are the ones who "know what they are talking about." If they only did—what a peaceful world this would be. I certainly agree with Sensible Sixteen and other sensible girls who are fond of sports and fashions and who enjoy having a good time like a normal girl should, but these snobs of such abnormal minds, these perfect-little-sitarounds, have absolutely no right in any way to judge the girl of good sound common sense and who knows from experience what she is talking about.

Many thanks, Minerva. This is my first letter but you shall probably hear from me quite often now. —IVORY.

Asks For Wheel Chair.

Dear Minerva: A very sweet old lady, who has lost the use of her right side, would love to get out into the beautiful sunshine. I am wondering if there is not some one of your readers who has, or knows of some one who has a wheel chair to loan this lovely old soul. She can't go to church because she can't be lifted around so much, but in a wheel chair she would get well I'm sure in ashort time. Will anyone who has a wheel chair kindly get my name from Minerva and I will be so glad to call for the lady. Thanks.—MARY.

A. Perhaps some of the readers has had an invalid in the family, who has now recovered, and will be glad to offer the chair to another. This letter was unaccountably mislaid in some manner, and it is very late in appearing, but the invalid could enjoy the lovely fall days if some one has a chair.

Rushee Has Problem.

Dear Minerva: I am coming to the university fro ma small town this year, and I have been invited to some rushing parties. Will you please tell me the clothes to wear, as I am very ignorant. Do I wear gloves and hat? Thank you—JEAN.

A. For the rushing parties, clothes that you wear to similar functions in your own town are suitable. For the morning, sport clothes with shoes and hat suitable for the street, or a new smart flannel or wool frock is best. It isn't always possible to change for the luncheons, I understand, if you have a morning engagement, but a silk dress in a dark color, or flowered, semi-sleeved or long sleeved, with a hat is generally seen. The formal evening frocks, sleeveless, with light slippers and hose, and without a hat, are customary. Gloves have nearly gone out of fashion for the university girls.

Plans to Elope.

Dear Minerva: I am nineteen and in love with a boy three years older than I. He has a high school education and is working in an office now, but he is ambitious and I am certain he will really do something worth while. Here is the trouble. My family want me to go with and marry another fellow, who is nearly thirty and much richer. He works, too, although most of his money is inherited, but he doesn't spend much and it is easy for him to save. He is a college graduate, but doesn't come of any nicer family than the other one, even though his family was wealthier. I don't like him at all and I'm planning to elope with the first boy I told you about. He is allowed to come to the house, but the family is awfully cool to him, while father and mother just fall over themselves to be nice to the one I don't like. Minerva, don't you think I'm old enough to know my own mind—I've worked for more than a year down town—and that it would be all right to go away and get married.—DOUBTFUL.

A. I can never advise anyone to elope, for I really don't like to see young folks do that and it does cause so much comment among the people who will be your neighbors and acquaintances for years to come. Won't you wait at least another year, for you are both young to take up the responsibilities of married life. If you really care for this boy and he for you, you can wait that long and in the mean time you can prepare for your future home. Tell your family what you would like to do and try to find out if they have any more serious objection to him than his lack of money. Young folks in love often disregard money as too sordid and mercenary, but it does take some money to make true love run smooth, and I doubt that a young man in a clerical position in an office is earning a very large sum. Don't prejudice yourself against the richer man in a stubborn spirit, for one's likes and dislikes, even at nineteen, are plastic and before marrying it is well to be very, very certain. I think a girl of nineteen is old enough to know her own mind—at nineteen—but are you old enough to look forward, ten, fifteen, twenty years? Do you care enough to stand by this young man in case his prospects should not materialize and he should remain an office worker his entire life?

Waste Paper Fire Causes Stir at Y

Men residing at the Y. M. C. A., Thirteenth and P streets, were alarmed Sunday evening when a quantity of waste paper in the basement of the building caught fire. An overheated elevator motor, beside which the paper had been stacked, caused the blaze. It was extinguished before any damage was done.

CHAPTER LXI.

The prospect of having a Christmas partly filled Rhoda Thorne's mind to such an extent that she gave less thought to her mother's letter than she would have given at any other time.

Indeed the letter was so kind that the reading of it had not caused the recipient actual mental discomfort. The writer had mentioned having received an epistle from her sister-in-law—one that had been "rather hysterical" in its tone.

"I am determined not to let myself worry unduly over your aunt's account of your manner of life and surroundings," Martha Thorne wrote. "She is, I know, over-conventional. She admits that you told her you would not mind my seeing you in the atmosphere and conditions in which she saw you.

"Such being the case, I flatter myself that you will not be disturbed if I run down to New York to visit you some time. As you are not coming home for Christmas, I find it hard to reconcile myself to not getting a glimpse of you until next spring. And New York is an alluring place to go to when one needs new clothes—as I shall soon."

Rhoda read this paragraph over twice, then she shrugged her shoulders.

"Mother is all the time planning possible trips and seldom taking them. I will believe she is coming when I see her. She would be awfully out of place here. She is never really awkward, but she would be quite lost in this atmosphere."

She repeated this opinion to Raphael Scott on the afternoon before Christmas Day as he and she hung wreaths in the two windows of her studio and draped garlands of greenery over mirror and doors.

"I'd like to see your sedate parent," Scott observed.

"You would not care to see her down here," Rhoda remarked with a smile. "She would not approve of you, and our set would shock her—although truth compels me to say that she would treat the whole bunch with courtesy. But if she were to look in on some of our good times she would leave as soon as politeness permitted.

"I suppose she would," the man remarked. "There—how does that look?"

He stepped down from the chair on which he had been standing while he tacked a branch of hemlock over the fire-place.

"It's lovely!" Rhoda declared. Then she drew in a long breath. "It smells like home—and Christmas time!"

"It is Christmas time, and this is home," he reminded her.

His voice was gentle, but she checked him as he moved toward her. Something—perhaps the remembrance of the old holidays at Hillsdale—made her hope that at this minute he would not speak as tenderly as he sometimes did. It would seem almost like disloyalty to the by-gone days.

Then she told herself that she was silly. This was the place she had chosen. The friends she had elected were here in Greenwich Village. She would shake off the weak mood cause by the fragrance of the Christmas greens.

"I am going out to buy some things," she said practically, getting her hat and coat.

"I am coming too," Scott declared. "I shall buy some things for the party my own self."

She laughed, but did not protest. Together the pair went out into the frosty street.

A light snow had fallen in the night. It had already been turned into black grit by the dut of the city. It had frozen to the sidewalks in ugly lumps.

"Nasty-looking stuff!" Scott commented. "I bet that up where you used to live it is as white as angels' wings—if there are such things as angels. And I bet your mother would never recognize that"—pointing to the gray mass in the gutter—"as snow. She wold probably think it was filthy sand."

Rhoda forced a smile. She wished he would not remind her at this moment of the whiteness of the New England roads and hills. Anyway it was cold up there, much colder than New York.

"Snow is especially hateful on the seacoast," her companion continued. "In your part of the country the air is so dry that one does not shiver as one does here. Of course it is deadly to live there, but one must admit that it is a better looking place in winter than is the well-known borough of Manhattan."

"Would you mind," Rhoda said testily, "talking of something else for a while. I have chosen New York as my home, and I would prefer that you should not call my attention to its defects."

Her companion emitted a low whistle. "I actually believe you are peeved with me for admitting that Greenwich Village may not be quite as beautiful as the village of Hillsdale!" he declared merrily. "Well, you are a loyal lover, all right! Having adopted New York as your home, you will not admit that it is not perfect. When I note your tendency to stand by what you love, I wish you loved me."

"Don't be silly!" she chided. "We came out to shop, not to talk nonsense."

"It is not nonsense," he began.

But she prevented further argument by turning abruptly into a grocery store. He followed her slowly. By the time he reached her side she was buying apples, oranges, nuts and raisins with a recklessness that amazed him.

Exhibits Made By Boys and Girls Win Many Prizes

(Special to The Star.)

BROKEN BOW, Neb., Aug. 31.—The Custer county fair closed Saturday with the biggest crowds in attendance that has ever been recorded in the history of the organization, more than 20,000 people passing through the gates on Thursday. The boys and girls club work was featured at this fair, an entire building devoted to this alone. It was one of the most interesting spots on the grounds, each club having a booth appropriately arranged in competition for the prizes offered for the best display. Some of the finest exhibits of purebred livestock were from club members and they carried off their full share of prizes not only in their exclusive exhibit but in the big cattle and swine barns as well, where they were competing with the experienced stock breeders.

Sugar Beets Are Found To Be In Finest Condtiion

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Aug. 31.—(AP)—Manager A. J. Denman of the American beet sugar company has returned from an extended trip throughout the beet raising territory and reports the fields to be in better condition at this time of the year than at any time before since the establishment of the beet mill 35 years ago.

The outlook is that the campaign will be commenced earlier than in previous years as the crop appears several weeks ahead, while the tonnage is expected to be greater owing to a large increase in beet acreage, Mr. Denman said.

Mr. Denman also put to rest rumors that the company planned to move its location in the western part of the state. He said while most of the beets are grown in the western part of the state, farmers in this part of Nebraska are taking a more active interest in beet contracts.

Her left foot had to be amputated but prompt surgical action saved her right one.
